Abstract

Men and women are the two subjects with disparities in the society. Women have often played subordinate roles in the society from the past and they are discriminated in numerous ways. In this respect, feminism claims gender equality among men and women in all spheres. Even though, Feminism serves as the thoughts that support to the women who are discriminated and pushed back in the line of development along with men through expressing the feelings and gender perspectives of women. Feminism fails to focus on men and how they are discriminated in the society. This study was conducted with the aim of critically analyse the feminist thoughts which have solely focused on women as the main subject by edging the problems faced by men. This qualitative study is based on secondary data, which was already published on books, magazines, journal articles and reliable web sources. Descriptive analysis method is used for this study.
